STRUCK GIRL ON

Big. Broad-Shouldered Man inflicts Ugly Wound as Young Woman Alights from Cab on Broadway with Companion.

ASSAILANT ARRESTED. RIVES $500 CASH BAIL.

His Lawyer Asserts Blow Was Intended for Man Who Was with Girl-Woman Tells Her Side of Story.

A big, broad-shouldered man, whom the police say is Charles Felton, a wellknown Tenderloin sporting man, stood at the corner of Broadway and Thirtysixth street early to-day twirling a heavy cane in his hand. A cab drove up to the curb and a very pretty and fashionably dressed young woman got out, followed by a dapper young man, The big man waved his cane above his head and brought it down with all his strength on the head of the young woman. She fell to the sidewalk with an ugly cut in her head and a crowd gathered about and was beginning to get troublesome when Policeman Whit man came along and arrested the man. He was held at the curb until an am bulance arrived. The surgeon dressed he young woman's injuries, and she went to the station-house and made formal complaint against the big man. Held in $500 Bail.

The latter gave his name as Samuel Fuller, of No. 348 West Forty-sixth street, but all the policemen laughed, because they say they know he is Charles Felton. The woman said she was Mahel Burns of No. 113 West Forty-eighth street, but the police say she is Alice Wilson.

Felton gave $500 cash bail and was released, but he was in Jefferson Market Court later in the day, accompanied by Louis Lowenstein, a lawyer. The woman did not appear, but Mark

Alter appeared for her and said she was too ill to come to court, but wanted enstein opposed this, saying that the blow which struck the girl was aimed at her male companion. Other witnesses said that beyond any doubt i was aimed at the girl. Magistrate Ommen finally held the prisoner until

The explanation of the entire affair, as made by Lawyer Alter and a friend of the injured woman, is simply that released, but he was in Jefferson Mar-Felton was formerly very friendly with Miss Wilson, but that something happened to estrange them and another admirer stepped into the breech. Felton resented this and when he saw the pair together lost his temper.

Girl Tella Her Story. Miss Wilson was seen by an Evening World reporter at her home, No. 248 West Forty-third street, to-day. Hor was swathed in bandages and she was suffering from severe pains. Her

"Lest night I was on my way home with a friend when he saw me get out of the cab. He came toward me and when he attempted to speak to me I said: "You're a four-flusher."

"Then he raised his cane and pulled my arm, which I raised to defend my self. He hit me again and again. I had the greatest difficulty in getting the police to arrest him. They wouldn't listen to me at first."

BUCKLEY ESCAPED FLAMES.

(Special to The Evening World.)
GENESEO, N. Y., June 30.—Bleak House, the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Julian G. Buckley, of New York, was destroyed by fire early to-day, en-tailing a loss of about $35,000. The blaze originated in the rear of the house and the family barely escaped with their lives. There was no available water to fight the fiames and very little was asved. Mr and Mrs. Buckley had just returned from New York yesterday.

tablishment at Fifty-eighth street and Third avenue is familiar to every one, sailed vesterday for Europe to purchase diamonds. He goes to Amsterdam, the great precious stone mart of the world. Here he will make a large selection of cut and uncut stones. Everybody loves diamonds. Their sparkle fascinates the rich and poor alike. Reports show that their price is constantly increasing and Mr. Lambert's trip will enable him to take advantage of the price to-day, which is lower than it will be this day next year. The Lamberts buy direct. They laid in a large stock of stones before the last increase in price and these gems will see them through until long after the next holidays. The new supply which Mr. Lambert goes over to get was not really needed, but it will enable the firm to keep their prices down in the future as in the past. Lambert Brothers have been frequently advised to move into a more "fashlenable" neighborhood. Their reply is that if they did so their operating expenses would be so increased that they could no longer compete to advantage, as they do now, with other reliable jewelry houses of high and long-established reputation. Over their store is their factory, one of the most interesting places in New York. Here much of the brilliant stock is made and the visitors may see how precious metal and gems are combined in a thousand forms of beauty. Even in the dog-days, when most business languishes, that factory is a very been layed and long will close every evening. Saturdays included, at 8 o clock.
